

Bob Ray: The Lost Episodes, Volume 4

Bob Elliott and Ray Goulding
audiobook | *ebooks | Download PDF | ePub | DOC

 Download

 Read Online

#3013111 in Books 2002-11-30 2002-11-01 Binding: Audio CD | File size: 38.Mb

Bob Elliott and Ray Goulding : Bob Ray: The Lost Episodes, Volume 4 before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Bob Ray: The Lost Episodes, Volume 4:

0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Classic RadioBy P. NicholsonThe material on the CDs is simply great! These guys were pioneers in something that has become so rare these days, intelligent, non-ridiculing, non-mean spirited, profanity laced humor. Indeed radio today with the exception of college stations, Pacifica Radio and some community radio is all programmed from a corporate headquarters in New York or L.A. or somewhere and shows like Bob and Ray's aren't even possible now. I'm so happy that so many of their shows were recorded and have made it onto this series of CDs. Unfortunately the packaging to ship this to me sucked. The CDs are all OK but the 4 CD case arrived completely shattered.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five StarsBy Arnold R. StraussGreat old Bob and Ray shows.

Contains 81 Bob Ray selections including 6 Mary Backstage episodes featuring Sming Smog, a giant skunk who escapes from the New York Coliseum into Carnegie Hall, then scales the Empire State Building; Wally Ballou; Mary McGoon; Webley Webster; Biff Burns; Linda Lovely; The McBeeBee Twins; Barry Campbell; Commercials; Matt Neffer, Boy Spotwelder; Elmer W. Litzinger, Spy; Mr. Trace, Keener Than Most Persons; Aunt Penny's Sunlit Kitchen; One Fella's Family; Charles the Poet; CBS Promos and much more.

About the AuthorBob [Elliott] Ray [Goulding], legendary American humorists, are loved by fans and by fellow humorists, comedians and broadcasters. Bob Ray's 40-year career began at WHDH, Boston. Bob was a disc jockey, and Ray a newscaster. When the Red Sox games were delayed on account of rain, they began to amuse each other to fill the time. Soon they had a daily show of their own, "Matinee with Bob Ray," an improvised, madcap exercise in controlled chaos. Over their long career, they created more than a hundred characters, all played by Bob or Ray: Ace reporter Wally Ballou, winner of 17 awards for diction; Mary McGoon, whose recipe for frozen ginger ale salad prefigures Martha Stewart; Biff Burns in the sports room; Webley Webster; Barry Campbell, a third rate actor with an ego the size of the universe; Mary Backstayge, Noble Wife whose pals travel the world in search of goofy adventure. Their humor is subtle, dry, intelligent and clean but never treacly. Bob Ray have a keen ear for language, how it is used and misused by the con artists, hucksters and hustlers who populate radio and television, even today. Their humor is timeless. Bob Ray's satire of soap operas, game shows, radio shrinks and other self-appointed "experts," and commercials, is as pertinent today as it was in 1946 when they began. They belong in the pantheon of American humor, alongside Mark Twain, George Ade, Will Rogers, S. J. Pearlman, Kurt Vonnegut and Garrison Keillor. In 1951 NBC brought them to New York for a daily 15-minute television program, and network radio shows including, Monitor. Over the next thirty years they appeared on every major network, and on three powerful New York radio stations. They finished their radio career on public radio with the "The Bob Ray Public Radio Show" (1982-2004), and two sold-out, farewell appearances at Carnegie Hall (1984). All of these performances have been preserved on CDs from Bobandray.com. Bob Ray have won three Peabody Awards and three Grammy nominations, as well as many other prestigious honors. For more information about Bob and Ray, and for detailed track listings, visit our website at bobandray.com (just copy and paste into your browser as this is not a link.)