Funny true-to-life - i couldn't put it down By Laurie Harley Lisa describes the world of Internet dating in such a comical way that you keep reading just to see what she does next. This is a must-read for any single woman, no matter how she's meeting men - whether she's using an Internet dating service, browsing the bar scene, or whatever. I also highly recommend this to any married woman whose husband "travels on business." And lastly, you men out there should read this one, too. Not only will you learn something about yourself, you may even learn something about women. Lisa's research really dug into the psyche of the human male - and left me in tears from laughter. 2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Internet Dating - Facts of Life, in black and white or pink By Claude C. Young Lisa has nailed the atmosphere on the head. Nailing seems to be one of her traits as she has nailed so many of 'those' kind of internet chatters, daters and players. Each person considering using the internet, or any other means of meeting someone of the opposite sex should read this hilarious and always informative book about the internet. The many personas she has portrayed shows her imagination, resourcefulness and overall great personality to explore those who fall for 'the baiting game'. Keep hammering, Lisa, there are plenty of nails left. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. The Baiting Game: Girls Behaving Badly Online By Sydney L.
