Am waiting for the new edition...By Albert MilgromThe basic principles remain the same, but for ever-watchful doc filmmakers and industry types, this helpful book(2012) is due for a reprint with a detailed preface bringing the current doc scene(now half a decade later) up to speed--something with a look at the newcomers, trends, winners ,beyond the commercially successful Michael Moore's and Alec Gibneys.2 of 3 people found the following review helpful. Five StarsBy NavyMark224Excellent source of information for my change of career!3 of 4 people found the following review helpful. Documentary DelightBy Lynn M.Documentary films, as instruments of both fun and enlightenment, have long been of interest to me. This book is a wonderful encapsulation of how the process of this filmmaking works. The interviews from current filmmakers and industry experts left me with new insights.

About the AuthorGenevieve Jolliffe met Chris Jones at film school and the two went into independent filmmaking through their production company, Living Spirit Pictures. She directed their third film together, Urban Ghost Story, in 1998. After moving to Los Angeles, Genevieve was a major force in pulling together the US edition of The Guerilla Film Makers Handbook, and she also co-authored The Documentary Film Makers Handbook in 2006. With her husband and screenwriting partner Andrew Zinnes, she has sold projects to Warner Bros and has two indie features set to be filmed in 2010.Andrew Zinnes has worked in development at Paramount Pictures and at USA Networks. He left to become a script analyst, and worked for Morgan Creek Productions, Artisan and several script analyst companies. Using his documentary filmmaking experience, Andrew was the perfect co-author for The Documentary Film Makers Handbook. He has taught documentary at the NY Film Academy and has lectured on filmmaking at schools and colleges around the US. He is a founding partner of the film company Crazee Pictures.
