This was a replacement for my copy which I bought and read years ago, then loaned to someone and never saw again. The convention originally was the solution to a problem than arises when opponents interfere with an opening 1NT and partner must bid a suit at the 3-level. Is it forcing or invitational? Without Lebensohl, it's by partnership agreement, which will be wrong half the time. Lebensohl resolves the problem.

By J. Hack
The Lebensohl Convention is a very usefull convention in duplicate bridge. Even home style players can find this convention useful. It is best used after a natural overcall of a 1 NT opener or to compete against a weak two opener. Anderson explains the convention clearly and thoroughly. Here is an example of using Lebensohl. Your partner opens 1 NT. The next player overcalls 2S. What do you do? Anderson explains how to do this in Chapter 2 with many examples.

By Lberna
It is everything you ever wanted to know about Lebansohl and then some. It is written very concisely with plenty of sample hands to practice with. I belong to a bridge club where opponents interfere with the bidding all the time. This has proven to be an asset in dealing with these competitors. You and your partner will definitely learn Lebansohl with this book.

Expert bidding has undergone a major upheaval during the past twenty years. Accuracy, especially in competitive bidding, has become so necessary on the tournament scene that we have seen the birth of hundreds of gadgets and conventions. Among these, one of the most useful and most adopted by expert players is the Lebensohl convention, Its popularity is no accident. Lebensohl has virtually eliminated the all-too-frequent aggravation we once faced at the table - what to do when partner opens one notrump and right-hand opponent overcalls.
